

Thomas A. Gibson

Of Counsel

About Thomas

Tom's legal career covers a wide range of business areas including real estate where he represents a number of real estate investment companies in the purchase and sale of real estate.

Tom's work in environmental law includes understanding governmental mandates established to protect the environment and maintain air and water quality, and control toxic substances. He provides counsel to clients on environmental liability, regulatory compliance, enforcement actions, and risk assessments associated with business acquisitions. Under the environmental umbrella, Tom has served as counsel for Fortune 500 companies as well as family-owned businesses.

For several small to mid-size companies, Tom acts as general counsel providing advice and guidance on all aspects of their business.

Prior to entering the practice of law, Tom worked as a civil engineer for five years at a consulting firm in Toledo, Ohio. His work there was primarily in the areas of municipal water and wastewater treatment and environmental engineering.
